PREMIUM TIMES was briefed on the deliberations at the meeting by multiple sources present.

The governors were led to the meeting by their chairman, who doubles as the governor of Kebbi State, Atiku Bagudu. Also in attendance were both Senate President Ahmad Lawan and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Femi Gbajabiamila.

The Governor of Katsina State, Bello Masari, who was also a speaker of the House of Representatives, was accorded the opportunity to speak to the lawmakers on the likely consequences of the president's appearance before the lawmakers.

Governors' argument

Apart from their fear that the state houses of assembly may want to take the opportunity to “harass” the governors by seeking frequent appearances, they also claimed that they had obtained an intelligence report that indicated that the opposition Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) members were planning to embarrass the president.

The governors also spoke about party supremacy, insisting that the decision of the party at its National Executive Council meeting held earlier in the day was to discourage the president from addressing the lawmakers.

One of the governors from the North Central states spoke about the public knowledge of their meetings and cited the earlier report by PREMIUM TIMES. The governor said the contents of the meetings with the president at the villa and other places, have been reported by the newspaper.

He, therefore, cautioned the members in attendance against sabotaging the interest of the party.

They, therefore, appealed to the lawmakers to heed their request by cancelling the address of the president which had already been scheduled for Thursday.

Senate President backs governors

Meanwhile, the President of the Senate, Mr Lawan, who was apparently the only senator in attendance at the meeting, was requested to have represented the position of the government.

ABOUT US

Premium Times Services Ltd., publishers of “Premium Times”- an online news brand of both local and international repute - is a media company with headquarters in Abuja, offices in Lagos and Washington D.C. and representatives across Nigerian states.

We have a vision to help strengthen Nigeria's democracy, advance the competitive edge of our economy, the well-being and the rights of the people, promote and enrich their cultural practices and advocate for best practices, good governance, transparency and human rights, in line with the values expected of a modern democratic state.

Proprietors of the organisation believe that of all the institutions of a modern democracy, the role of the media is a pre-eminent one that is best understood in promoting accountability and transparency in government.

We believe that the media can help forge new communities, pursue political and social agenda in support of a better society, and help build visions of hope and resistance.

Sadly the media can also lead in negative directions: dividing people and truncating hope and vision.

In our country, the media has played both roles at different times in our history.

Premium Times believes that the time has come for Nigeria to embrace the challenge of progress and development in a substantial, concrete sense.

As a result of this, we have brought a huge commitment to offer our country the type of media that will advocate for the people, and nudge our nation towards the path of development and social re-engineering.

We are of the view that, in terms of its formal processes and philosophy of its content, the new media that will help spur the challenge of educational revolution, cultural rebirth, and economic development in Nigeria, must be reflective, thoughtful, analytical and empathetic, without a sense of entitlement and insularity.

We have come to fill that lacuna and raise the bar of journalism in our country.

We plan to publish across all formats, beginning with this online platform, where we hope to appeal to the swelling ranks of our young and middle class elites, with a vision of the future and belief in social change.

No other online media in Nigeria equals our footprint in the African region particularly in West Africa and South Africa.

We have proudly earned our bragging rights as the leading online platform in breaking news, analytical delivery, social responsibility, and informed commentaries.

Above all we have come to be seen as the reference point on investigative reporting, and multimedia news delivery, with a robust feedback mechanism, and the most engaging reach to the Nigerian youth.

Currently as an online platform, Premuimtimesng.com sharply contrasts from its peers which are mere news aggregators, by operating a truly professional news operation based on sound ethics.

All our content is verified and published on the best judgment of our editors.

No news is purchased here.
